Stalled Plow Slows Traffic—There's room for argument—but not much for vehicular traffic—in this case. The usual situation, whereby the snowplow operator complains about the motorists who block his way, is reversed in this instance . . . as a snowplow, which broke down Sunday at the traffic circle at Old Colony ave., Columbia rd. and Preble st., South Boston, remains where it failed . . . in the path of autos swinging around the circle.

Memorandum to Mr. Hearst On Universal Military Training

HEARST NEWSPAPERS
607 TIMES-HERALD BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D. C.
JANUARY 22, 1948

Your Washington Bureau has talked to about 50 Congressmen who favor universal military training. These Congressmen say:

Two-thirds of the House is afraid that universal military training, together with labor, the Wallace campaign, the left wing drive, etc., will hurt them with voters. Very frankly, members of the House put the business of getting re-elected on their AA-1 priority.

Many of them favor some form of universal training, but believe it is a tight issue and want to duck it in this last session of a presidential election year. Their reaction is: "We would like it a lot better in 1949."

Therefore, expect these tactics:

- 1—Continued attempts to keep the bill bottled in the rules committee of the House.
- 2—If the bill gets out of this committee, there will be a barrage of amendments in an effort to send the bill back to the armed services committee for further hearing and study.
- 3—Introduction of allegations that the six months' training and seven alternatives for completion of training are not backed solidly by all universal training proponents. This is calculated to split proponents.
- 4—On the Senate side, delay as long as possible the hearings by Sen. Chan Gurney (R.) of South Dakota, chairman of the Senate armed services committee—and then delay putting a bill before the Senate.

Taft Wing Will Fight

5—On the floor, the Taft wing, openly against the bill, will fight it with the claim that "mass armies are out-moded; air power and atomic weapons are the weapons of the future," etc. (The Taft approach will be duplicated on the House side by Clarence Brown of Ohio, one of the senior and more influential members, and participant in management of the Taft presidential campaign.)

6—Over-all delaying strategy, if it can stall a vote until April, will nurture disagreements between House and Senate, necessitating conference between the two Houses before any vote is possible on whatever compromise bill is worked out by Senate and House.

This adds up to a rough fight.

It is respectfully recommended that three things might be done to end present delaying tactics and get quick action.

More Pressure Needed

These are:

- 1—Opponents point to endorsements by generals and colonels and say that only the military really want universal training. It is suggested that we need more pressure from mothers, teachers, student leaders, civic leaders, etc.
- 2—Put every Congressman on the spot, demanding a yes or no answer, by deluging all of them with telegrams from veterans' organizations, civic groups, ordinary citizens, putting this three-point question:

"Do you believe universal military training is needed now?"

"Will you vote for military training at this session of Congress?"

"Will you sign a petition to discharge the rules committee from further consideration of the universal military training bill now before the rules committee, thus bringing it to the floor of the House where Representatives may be placed on record as for or against the bill?"

Definite Reply Wanted

The telegrams must be framed to obtain a direct yes or no reply. They must be prevented from evasion with such replies as, "I am for a strong Army and Navy and Air Force, but—" then going on to find fault with the specific measure pending.

An editorial or series of editorials that might be titled, "Yes or No on Universal Military Training," or "YOU Answer, Mr. Congressman, Before We Vote," or "Stalling Helps Stalin." Such a campaign might stir up groups dependent upon to send telegrams.

The main idea is to organize a mass of representative constituent groups who will demand straight answers and action now, implying that further evasion will displease the voters at home.

Sincerely,
EDWARD C. LAPPING.

More U. S. Aides Listed as Traders

By FRANK B. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—Agriculture Secretary Anderson made public today a list of 738 commodity market speculators which included Sen. Thomas (D.) of Oklahoma, his wife, and James Bruce, identified as the U. S. Ambassador to Argentina. Also listed was

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER—Jadwiga Curtin, 20-year-old Polish war bride, who has been convicted of manslaughter in the bar pickup slaying of a Palo Alto, Cal., salesman. She will be sentenced later in Redwood City, Cal., court. The victim was shot to death in his car following a drinking party. AP Wirephoto

Harry C. Westphal, secretary to Sen. Bushfield (D.) of South Dakota, Alfred C. Ulmer of Jacksonville, Fla., identified as head of the U. S. Mission to Austria, and four employees of the Commodity Credit Corp., the government's giant procurement agency.

The Agriculture Department announced before release of the list that it has suspended for 30 days three field agents suspected of using inside information in commodity speculation.

Names of the three were not announced but it was revealed that Alan L. Rust of Boston, listed by Anderson today as an appraiser for the CCC, had been suspended, investigated and reinstated.

NAME HANNEGAN AIDE

The other CCC men named on the list were Earl C. Corey of Portland, Ore., a regional director, R. S. Jones of Minneapolis, and Emory McDonald of New Orleans, a clerk.

Today's list was compiled from reports of brokers called for by Anderson on publicity-employed persons who speculated in commodities between Jan. 1, 1946, and Dec. 15, 1947. The nature and extent of their speculation was not shown.

The aid was a aide to former Postmaster-General Robert Hannegan, whose name entered the Edwin W. Pauley hearing as a visitor to the Army official's Hawaiian Island estate with Sec. Anderson last August.

The aid was Frank Pace, Jr., listed as having been executive assistant to the Postmaster-General.

THOMAS DIRECTLY NAMED
Sen. Thomas, who earlier said he had been speculating for years, was directly named as a trader for the first time. He said he had not speculated directly for several years.

The Senator's wife, Mrs. Edith Thomas, appeared in earlier lists, and Thomas admitted that Dyke Cullum, big Washington speculator, had made investments in Cullum's name for him.

Listed with thomas and his wife today was a staff member, Miss Beth Gage, whose name also appeared on previous lists. Cullum appeared again on the government employee list because he once was acting postmaster at Silver Spring, Md., a Washington suburb.

Westphal, Sen. Bushfield's aide, who has an 800-acre farm, said he had had market operations for years—sometimes as hedging on his wheat crop and sometimes as speculation.

He said he had two lard contracts last September, netting $1000 on one and $70 on the other, but denied having inside information.

Twenty-two Office of Price Administration officials in various parts of the nation also appeared on the list, which carried a heavy sprinkling of Army and Navy personnel.

Hub Man Named in List Is Cleared, Reinstated

Alan L. Rust, vice-president and treasurer of a large Boston wool firm, listed by Agriculture Sec. Anderson as suspended from his post as government wool appraiser for allegedly using inside information, pending investigation, was declared by a local official of the Department of Agriculture.

Deny Plea for Early House UMT Action

By RAYMOND WILCOVE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (INS)—Rep. Allen (R.) of Illinois, chairman of the House Rules Committee, rejected today an appeal by supporters of universal military training for an early hearing on the legislation. Allen advised Rep. Andrews (R.) of New York, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, that action this early in the session would be "most injudicious."

Andrews' group reported out the legislation last July and in an effort to speed up consideration the New York congressman requested Allen formally by letter three weeks ago to grant him a hearing.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Towse (R.) of New Jersey, provides for compulsory peacetime military training for youths of 18 to 21. It has been termed urgent by President Truman and is strongly endorsed by veterans' organizations. The rules committee has given no indication, however, that it intends to report the bill out.

MEASURE IN DANGER
Without rules committee approval, the measure will die for this session, unless 218 members, a majority of the House, sign a petition filed by Rep. Larcade (D.) of Louisiana, to discharge the group from further consideration of the legislation.

In his letter to Andrews, Allen stated:

"It should be obvious that to take action on the matter involving such tremendous expenditures before the legislative program has been fully developed would be most injudicious."

"The rules committee stands in a different position from other standing committees of the House. It can not take narrow, isolated views of legislation, and must base its consideration on broader concepts."

"At the appropriate time I shall discuss your request with members of the committee."

Andrews said he might have something to say about Allen's letter soon.

Cabbie Can't Identify 5-Holdup Suspect

A 34-year-old Charlestown man, recently paroled from State Prison, was released today by police after a cab driver confronted him and failed to identify him as one of two gunmen who kidnaped him and used his cab to rob three liquor stores in succession of a total of $355.

The cab driver, George D. Porter, 37, of Russell st., Charlestown, previously had identified a rogues' gallery photograph of the suspect as one of the bandit duo. But when Porter faced him, he turned to officers and said that he did not recognize him as one of the two men.

Porter told officers he picked up the two men in Andrew sq. and, as they started, one of the two stuck a gun in his back, ordering him from the front to the rear seat. He was robbed of $9 and then one of the pair took the wheel of the cab.

The bandits struck first at the Warren Liquor Mart in Warren st., Roxbury, where George Franklin, 50, of College ave., West Roxbury, a clerk, was on duty.

While one gunman remained in the taxi and kept Porter covered, the other forced Franklin into a rear room, warning he would kill him if he made an outcry. Seizing $200 from the cash register, the bandit then rejoined his accomplice in the cab.

Five minutes later, after driving around several blocks, the bandits returned to Warren st. and held up the Charles Liquor Mart.

In the store were Charles Goldberg, 50, of Rockland st., Roxbury, the owner; Benjamin Grodzins, 35, of Warren ave., a clerk, and Charles Smart, 45, of Lincoln st., Belmont, a beer salesman. All three were forced at gunpoint into a rear room. The bandit then looted the register of $152.50.

This holdup was witnessed by a man and woman who gave the police the description and registration number of the taxi. Despite a police cordon thrown around the district, the bandits struck a third time at the wholesale liquor store of M. Gootner & Sons in Washington st., South End.

George Gootner, 51, of Pembroke st., South End, was alone in the store. The same gunman backed him into a corner, where Gootner, after giving up $3 of his own money, put up a fight.

The pair battled their way through the store to the sidewalk, where the other bandit slugged Gootner and then fled on foot.

Porter leaped from his cab and ran to the Warren ave. police station.

The Dorchester holdups were at the variety store of Max Karp, 70, in Adams st., where three masked gunmen took $40, and at the Thom McAn shoe store in Dorchester ave., where the bandits robbed the manager, Maxwell C. Bassett.

Motor Official Held In Theft of $7065

A trusted employe of the Packard Motor Co., of Boston for 10 years was accused today of embezzling $7065 in company funds. Harold J. Becker, 36, of Linden st., Needham, former assistant credit manager of the automotive concern, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in Brighton court.

Becker was arrested at the climax of a lengthy police investigation of his bookkeeping methods on a warrant obtained by headquarters Lt. George Augusta.

Special Justice John J. Sullivan ordered the defendant held in bail of $2500 and continued the case to Feb. 17. Becker, who is married and the father of a daughter, 14, was accompanied in court by his mother, Mrs. Emma Becker of Jamaica Plain.

The mother provided immediate bail for her son, putting up her home as security.

Details of defalcations to Becker were not revealed at today's hearing. The warrant on which he was arrested charged that he "did fraudulently convert on divers dates from Oct. 31, 1945 to Sept. 30, 1946, money in total of $7065 to his own use."

Becker, a $75-a-week employe of the auto firm, severed connections with Packard on Oct. 1, 1946.

The continuance to Feb. 17 in his case was requested by Atty. Frank L. Orfanello, defense counsel, who informed the court he needed time to prepare the defense.

More Snow and Cold Before It Warms Up

A new surge of cold air from the West was moving toward this area today, scheduled to bring near-zero and sub-zero temperatures to Boston and inland suburbs, respectively, but tomorrow should dawn fair after snow flurries to tonight, the Weather Bureau predicted.

Temperatures in the mid-20's today will drop to 12 downtown and zero to 5 above in interior suburbs, tonight.

A vast area of what the weather man described as bad weather was building up in the Gulf of Mexico, but the forecaster here was of the opinion it would pass south of New England.

Maine was the coldest of the New England states, with temperatures of —17 in Houlton, —16 at Millinocket and Caribou and —14 in Bangor.

Meanwhile, the cost of snow removal in Massachusetts was running into millions.

An emergency appropriation of $1,500,000, representing a dollar increase in the tax rate, was approved by Boston city council yesterday to cover costs of snow removal since last November.

The council voted approval after Public Works Comr. Robert P. Curley appeared at an executive meeting and gave the figures. Curley said that $784,514 had already been spent and that a like amount would be needed for the balance of the winter.

Stassen in N. H. Angling For Eisenhower Votes

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 27 (AP)—Harold E. Stassen swung into New Hampshire today in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination frankly admitting he was angling for Eisenhower votes.

The former Minnesota governor headed into the Granite State a few hours after telling a news conference that Sen. Taft (R.) of Ohio tried to persuade him at a Washington hotel conference Saturday night to stay out of the Ohio Republican presidential primary.

He quoted Taft as saying he "didn't think it advisable from either his standpoint or my standpoint to contest the Ohio primary."

Stassen said there was no discussion of his running on the same ticket with Taft, and replied "no comment" when a reporter asked if the Ohio senator made "any threats to you as to your future in the Republican party."

The hotel conference, he said, was arranged by Sen. McCarthy (R.) of Wisconsin on Taft's invitation. Stassen told newsmen he had made arrangements to confer with former New Hampshire supporters of Gen. Eisenhower in hope of getting them to climb onto his bandwagon.

A switch to Stassen by the Maine Eisenhower League was announced yesterday by Sec. Nick Papalas, who said the group believes he is the best possible remaining presidential candidate.

Trained Men Head Anti-Red Ukraine Revolt

By TOM AGOSTON

FRANKFURT, Jan. 27 (INS)—Ukrainians in the American occupation zone in Germany declared today reports of an anti-Soviet uprising in the Ukraine have long been anticipated.

Alexander, Tagiev, spokesman for some of the 100,000 Ukrainians in the zone, said:

"At last the world will realize the truth that not the entire population of Russia is painted Red."

He added that 12,000 guerrillas are operating in the Ukraine with the support of two million of the populace, and said:

"This is not a peasants' uprising. But a hard and well-led operation backed by the finest brains and trained leaders."

The projected "Independent Republic of the Ukraine" would include the Crimea and non-Kuban provinces, each of which is alien to Bolshevism, Tagiev said.

He asserted the Kremlin has a blanket 24-hour-a-day censorship to insure that details of the rebellion do not get to the outside world.

Pravda Attack Reveals Consumer Goods Lack

LONDON, Jan. 27 (AP)—Pravda today accused many industrial plant managers in Russia of disrupting consumer goods production. It singled out production failures in spades, locks, hammers, ironware and spoons.

The official Communist party paper pointed out in terms of almost unprecedented sharpness for a Russian newspaper dealing with internal affairs, that many plant managers were not carrying out their assignments.

Reports widely published abroad concerning acute shortages of consumer goods in Russia, particularly since the end of rationing and revaluation of the ruble, never have been confirmed officially. Pravda's stern treatment of the subject today, however, indicated that consumer goods output is lagging.

Roslindale Blaze Routs 20 to Street

Twenty persons, including seven small children, were driven to the street early today when smoke from a basement fire poured through a three-family house at Belgrade ave. and Ardent st., Roslindale. Flames of undetermined origin were confined to the cellar and damage was set at $1000.

The blaze tied up morning commuter traffic on the Forest Hills-Roslindale streetcar line. Those driven into the street included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, Charles Jr., 5; Albert, 4; Jean, 2½, and Paul, 7 months. Also Mr. and Mrs. James Dowling, Margaret Dowling, James, 22; Robert, 19, and William Dowling, 15; Mrs. Dorothy M. Foley, and her three children, Dorothy, 4; Thomas, Jr., and Joan Foley, 8 months.

Fuel Oil At Record Low

Bitter cold and snow-clogged highways today brought New England's critical fuel oil shortage to a new low.

"The situation is twice as bad as it was a week ago," George H. Rockwell, Massachusetts fuel oil co-ordinator, commented gloomily. "Supplies are at a new low, and a continued cold wave could produce a crisis from which it would be hard to recover."

The state co-ordinator said that the snow-covered roads have reduced deliveries seriously, in some cases as much as 50 per cent.

Rockwell also pointed out that thousands of families that live in tenements heated only by kerosene are the most seriously affected.

Meanwhile, Sen. H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire urged a bill which would prohibit export of petroleum products for a one-year period, with a $10,000 fine or two-year prison term for offenders.

Martin James Monti (left) of St. Louis, a former Army Air Force lieutenant, is charged with treason at arraignment before U. S. Comr. Edward E. Fahey (right) at New York. The FBI charges Monti broadcast Nazi propaganda. He was previously court-martialed for desertion and theft of a plane which he allegedly landed behind the German lines in 1944. Sentence was remitted and he was allowed to re-enlist. He was arrested after receiving honorable discharge as sergeant.

Bishop Nash Charges Visitor Held in State Backs Divorce Law Revision

The Rt. Rev. Norman B. Nash, Episcopal Bishop of Massachusetts, today gave his endorsement to proposed legislation to revise divorce laws in Massachusetts.

The bishop wrote Boston Atty. Samuel G. Thorne that he favored passage of a bill sponsored by the lawyer to provide for a recess commission survey of Massachusetts marriage and divorce laws and probate procedure, and another to set up divisions of investigation and conciliation in probate courts. Bishop Nash wrote:

"I thoroughly share your view that a stable and happy home life is the most important constructive factor in any one's career, man or woman, and I am sure that our laws on marriage and divorce need a great deal of improvement in order that they may be constructive rather than destructive of matrimonial stability.

"I have always, however, had grave doubts whether in this vast country of ours, with its tremendous difference in tradition and laws, it was possible to have a uniform divorce law, and I have favored, therefore, each state seeking to improve its own legislation."

The Bishop's views were made known as the Massachusetts House today prepared to reconsider a bill which would give the guilty party in a divorce the right to remarry a year and a half after the decree is granted, instead of the present two and a half years.

Rep. Edmond J. Donlan of West Roxbury moved reconsideration of the bill after the House had ordered it to a third reading. During debate, Rep. Charles J. Artesani of Brighton termed the bill "just one more attempt to break down the marriage laws."

Japs Told Don'ts of Snipe Snatching

TOKYO, Jan. 27 (AP)—Mashed fingers and burned pockets are natural hazards of "snipe snatching," the Japanese were warned today in a nation-wide radio program that specializes in the living arts.

To offset the hazards, the "Voice of the People" offered the following comments in a dissertation on "How to pick up cigaret butts":

1—"Do not pick up butt while it is still lying by person who

Charges that a "Dreyfus scandal" existed in Massachusetts with an innocent man being committed permanently to a mental institution to "cover" employees who had run in spite of low wages," he said. "Hospitals under some of our superintendents would not be well managed, even if wages were doubled."

He said that some of the charges contained in his pamphlet had resulted in reforms but that many of the conditions of which he wrote still existed and needed drastic corrective action.

Dead Who Buried 2 Infants While Alive, Starts Term

HOUSTON, Mo., Jan. 27 (AP)—John Monroe Garrett, a middle-aged farmer, began serving a life sentence today for burying alive his two infants shortly after their birth to an unwed mother.

Anna Ruth Robertson, 26, mother of the two babies, was scheduled to have a preliminary hearing today.

CHARGES ABUSES

Myrick also asserted he would welcome a special commission study of all the State's mental hospitals and institutions to establish the truth or falsity of the charges he made in the pamphlet. He asserted officials were not entirely blameless for wretched conditions in many institutions. He charged that abuse of patients which has sometimes resulted in fatalities was tolerated in some institutions. Others, he said, showed more interest in "hushing up" rather than correcting intolerable conditions.

Inmates who complained of such conditions, he said, were mistreated. Employees, who conscientiously sought to correct them, were discharged or blacklisted in some cases, he added.

HITS LOW WAGE PLEA

The plea that low wage scales made it impossible to provide better operation of such institutions was incorrect, he asserted.

"Hospitals with good superintendents are in general well threw it away—especially if thrower is from over there (America). Might have hand stepped on.

2—"Do not stand around a gathering from over there as if waiting for them to throw away cigaret as might not co-operate.

3—"Be sure cigaret is out. Otherwise, might burn pocket."

Snipe catching, the broadcast added, is "deplorable," but "there is no law against it."

Jap Bank Robber Poses as Doctor, Kills 12 by Poison

TOKYO, Jan. 27 (INS)—A Japanese who committed mass murder with swift-acting poison to achieve the robbery of a Tokyo bank was sought throughout Japan today by Japanese and American authorities.

The incredibly fiendish thief caused the deaths of 12 bank employees by making them drink a quantity of cyanide he represented as a "disinfectant" against dysentery. Four others were hospitalized in critical condition.

Police estimated he escaped with 50,000 to 100,000 yen while the poisoned bank employees were writhing in agony on the floor.

They said he posed as a city health official acting on orders of Gen. MacArthur's headquarters.

The massacre and robbery occurred at a branch of the Imperial Bank.

COLLAPSED INSTANTLY

The perpetrator walked into the office of the manager and told him he had been sent to "disinfect" the bank against dysentery. He said all employees would have to drink a certain "medicine"—even before the vault was locked for the day.

The unsuspecting employees were lined up before the manager's desk and each was given a "dose" of the colorless liquid which turned out to be cyanide acid.

Each victim collapsed almost instantly. A female clerk, however, was able to crawl from the bank and give the alarm.

The manager was one of the four survivors.

MISSED MUCH LOOT

The manager described the killer-bandit as a distinguished-looking man over 50 years of age, wearing a Tokyo municipal government amband.

Had he arrived at the bank sooner his loot would have been far greater, since the branch a few hours earlier had transferred 1,000,000 yen to the Imperial Bank's main office. The robber also missed 300,000 yen, concealed in drawers of desks outside the vault.

House GOP Speeds Tax Bill 'As Is'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—Republicans moved to ram their $6,300,000,000 tax-slashing bill through the House ways and means committee today "as is."

Chairman Knutson (R.) of Minnesota predicted the committee majority would beat down any changes and approve the measure as he wrote it.

The bill will go to the House for debate on Thursday. The House showdown vote is set for next Monday.

The Knutson proposal would:

1—Raise personal exemptions from $500 to $600.
2—Extend to all states the community property principle under which husbands and wives may divide the family income equally for tax reporting purposes, thus obtaining lower rates.

3—Give percentage tax reductions ranging from 30 per cent in the lowest income bracket to 10 per cent in the upper brackets.

The measure would relieve about 7,000,000 persons from further income tax payments.

New Truck Tie-Ups Threaten in N. E.

With union leaders of striking truck drivers and representatives of the Employers' Group making further efforts today to reconcile their differences at a State House conference, four other AFL Teamsters Union locals in New England threatened strikes within a few weeks.

It was learned that Local 437, with 550 members in Haverhill, Local 477 in Lawrence and Local 49 in Lowell, 1200 each, are taking strike votes at their next meetings. Local 597 in Vermont, 250 members, has already voted to strike.

In some cases, these locals hold contracts with out-of-town branches of large Boston trucking concerns, which have been tied up by the Local 25 strike, now in its 27th day.

Approximately 90,000 workers in 172 northern textile mills are scheduled to hold strike votes Sunday, unless the mills agree to a settlement of wage and hour demands. John Chupka, director of the woolen and worsted division, CIO Textile Workers Union of America, announced. The strike, he said, if voted, would take effect the following day.

U. S. Peace Insurance Lies In UMT, Church Group Told

With the Army's ground and air forces shrinking below authorized strength, universal military training is the one way for America to insure peace, according to Maj. Gen. Frank A. Keating, commanding general of the First Army, speaker at the annual meeting of the Episcopal Club at New England Conservatory of Music.

"We must have a trained reservoir of manpower if we wish to keep America strong," he said. "Major problems have not yet been solved and we must be constantly alert to our danger."

TWO COURSES TO FOLLOW

Gen. Keating pointed out that the size and composition of the military establishment was the responsibility of Congress, but there are "only two courses to follow for the protection of our country in this postwar period."

"These courses are either the maintenance of a professional Army and Navy considerably greater than this country has ever known or desired in peacetime, or the development of a backlog of civilians thoroughly grounded in basic military principles, who can be quickly integrated with a relatively small regular Army into a potent defense or striking force."

"It is questionable whether during this postwar period, a professional Army and Navy of size sufficient for adequate national defense could be recruited voluntarily. If not, this would lead to conscription in peacetime, which would strongly be opposed as un-American—and, moreover, would entail tremendous expense."

UMT IS SOLUTION

"Universal military training seems to be the only solution, assuming the premise that we are not again to be unprepared."

"The forces of aggression and subversiveness are still alive and active against everything that implies a democratic way of life. The chief hope of any peace as we would recognize it today lies in a strong and permanent United Nations organization. The chief hope for a successful and dynamic United Nations organization is a strong United States."

Family Spats Give Wife Writer's Cramp

SAN RAFAEL, Cal., Jan. 27 (AP)—After each family spat, Mrs. Harrison McNear Leppo testified, her stock broker husband forced her to write him a letter of apology.

The 30-years-old wife, seeking a divorce on grounds of cruelty, said she wrote 30 to 40 such notes between their marriage in 1941 and separation last August.

YOU SHOULD USE
15% LESS HEATING OIL
THIS WINTER

The heating oil supply situation is critical. Unless you and all other users of heating oil burn 15% less than normal during January, February and March, your home may be cold! Today the industry's production is the greatest in history—BUT—still not enough to meet the record demand. To save your 15%, take these steps now: Set thermostat at 68°... turn down to 60° at night or when away... keep radiators off in all unused rooms... use fireplace whenever possible... keep flues closed when not in use.

They forecast that American and British military strategy eventually would be decided.

The British expressed interest in a plan to send 10,000 British troops to the Middle East to suppress Jewish and Arab terrorism.

They said Bevin's strategy is set off a week's delay in plans on the Suez Canal of a possible general victory in Greece and on British-American supremacy in the Mediterranean.

Grain Probe

culture today to be blameless.

William Ellery, area wool appraiser of the Department of Agriculture said that the listing of Rust and a number of other men was unfortunate but was probably unavoidable because of the scale of the present investigation into all types of speculation.

Ellery said that Rust was only one of 75 local wool men employed part time by the government in appraising domestic wool clips and his government work could in no way assist him in the regular conduct of his own business.

He disclosed that another Boston wool merchant, Smith, had been suspended but refused to name him. The suspensions had been invoked some weeks ago, Ellery said, despite the fact the listings were only made public today. He added that Rust and the other merchant had since been reinstated and could be employed today if needed.

Rust, contacted in the office of his South Boston wool company, named Washington Laboratory for the "sip snip" methods of conducting the government investigation of wool purchases.

He said neither he or any wool man could make money buying wool for Commodity Credit Corporation or "get inside tips." Domestic wool prices, he explained, were fixed by the government and were available to everyone. He added that he worked only 19 days as a part time appraiser for the government last year.

Is Prohibition Coming Back?

ATTER the first World War, Prohibition was slipped over on the people of the United States by propaganda, started during the war, that it was necessary as a war emergency.

The fighting in World War II has been over for more than two years. Now many thoughtful people are wondering if we are threatened with Prohibition again. Certainly the dry propaganda mill is working overtime again, but it isn't quite clear whether the 1943 "party line" is that Prohibition is necessary because the last war is not over, or because there is a third World War just around the corner.

In any event, the Congress is being asked to extend legislation to restrict distillers to a few days' grain supply each month.

This would be a long step toward bringing back Prohibition.

It cannot be for any other purpose.

It cannot be to save grain.

The use of corn for distilling does not deprive America or the world of a single slice of bread.

As for wheat, the distilling industry uses less than one thousandth of one per cent of the total supply.

So the purpose must be Prohibition.

Even a school boy economist knows you do not save any grain when you restrict only one industry that uses about 1% of the total.

This is true because restricting one industry's 1 per cent sounds a warning to the users of the other 99 per cent of the possibility of allocation in their industries and actually encourages them—in the absence of any restriction—to process or pile up as much grain as they can. Just tell anybody that something is going to be scarce, and he will buy more than he normally uses.

The fact that grain could be distilled anywhere in the whole wide world including countries which import our American grain—while American distilleries were shut down—proves that ours was the only country that fell for such economic nonsense.

No other country is destroying a source of governmental revenue big enough to pay half the cost of the Marshall plan.

No other country is destroying an industry employing, directly and indirectly, more than two million of its citizens.

The claim that the restriction of American distillers has any humanitarian or economic basis is dry propaganda—and nothing else!

It might be hard to persuade the American workers who are out of work in Lawrenceburg, Indiana, to agree that the shipment of our grain for distilling in Canada or any other country by foreign workmen could serve any humanitarian, economic or social purpose.

America has sixty Lawrenceburgs!

American Distilleries were shut down in 25 states.

Canadian distillers ran at capacity.

British distillers ran at capacity.

Distilleries behind the Iron Curtain were reported running with American grain.

The very countries that are asking America for food are asking for more American grain for distilling and brewing than the whole American distilling industry has ever used in any year.

When the American distillers were shut down in November and December, Canada doubled its imports of American corn. Canada is not a starving country.

In the last four months of 1947, which included the American shutdown period, Canada imported almost one and a half million bushels of American rye. In the same period the year before they imported none.

If the American distilling industry were unrestricted it would use at the most as we have said, less than 1 per cent of the grain. The Secretary of Agriculture has issued an order, now in effect, cutting this down to $\frac{1}{2}$ of 1 per cent. This $\frac{1}{2}$ of 1 per cent is supposed to save the world, yet the Secretary of Agriculture tells a committee of the Senate that we will have plenty of grain.

But our processing of even this small amount of grain would not remove it from the food economy. Only the foreign governments seem to appreciate the fact that distilling not only keeps men and women employed, and adds to government revenue, but also results in by-product feed supplements which are returned to the food economy in the form of more meat, milk, butter, eggs, poultry and pork.

Some say that at least 45 per cent of the grain we use is thus returned to the food economy in the form of animal feeds. And some say more than 100 per cent is returned in the feeding value of the vitamin-rich high protein residue.

As we said in the beginning — the restriction of American distillers can have no other purpose than prohibition! The dry propagandist will try to tell you that there is an enormous gallonage of whiskey in this country. Actually, all during the war, this industry converted all its facilities to making alcohol for ammunition and synthetic rubber. After the war it was closed down month after month on account of European needs for grain.

The truth is that there is today in the United States just about one year's supply of whiskey four years old or older. The rest is green whiskey, not yet matured and ready for market.

The distilling business needs no defense by us. The people and the Congress of the United States decided through the Twenty-First Amendment to the Constitution that it is a legal business and a recognized part of our economy. More than a hundred thousand American citizens invested their savings in this industry on this assurance.

Don't let anyone tell you that the distillers are against aid to Europe.

Last year, this was the only industry that made a separate and voluntary contribution for the feeding of hungry people in other lands. The Distillers bought and paid for 20 million pounds of grain for Europe.

From October 25th to December 25th, we shut down voluntarily in answer to the plea that it would encourage others to make sacrifices. Schenley paid full wages—over a million dollars—to its employees who were thrown out of work.

We believe that hungry people everywhere should be fed. It is the American tradition to give of our resources to succor the needy and the unfortunate wherever they may be.

We are ready and willing to contribute on the same basis as every other American industry to the cost of providing relief to the people of Europe. But we do not agree that this can best be done by a partial or complete return to Prohibition. We do not believe it can be done by destroying or restricting an industry which the American people expressly voted into existence.

We do not believe it can be done by weakening our home economy through the loss of billions of dollars of revenue for National, State, and local governments; or by throwing hundreds of thousands of American workers out of their jobs.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1948, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

THE QUESTION will long be asked why the State Department waited so long to publish the documents relating to the Stalin-Hitler alliance. One day that question will be answered, too. Meanwhile, it is always worth-while to recall who did the telling and what he said.

"Although the United States would have full military and civilian representation on whatever international commission or commissions may be established for the execution of the whole German program, the primary responsibility for these policy of Germany and for civil administration in Germany should be assumed by the military forces of Germany's continental neighbors. Specifically, these should include Russian, French, Polish, Czech, Greek, Yugoslav, Norwegian, Dutch and Belgian soldiers.

"Under this program United States troops could be withdrawn within a relatively short time." — Henry Morgenthau — Program to prevent Germany from starting World War III. September, 1944.

We are still in Germany, but the Germans are not making World War III. We now say that the Russians are so engaged.

"EACH HIGH contracting party undertakes not to conclude any alliance and not to take part in any coalition directed against the other high contracting party." — British-Russian Treaty, May 26, 1942.

The Cominform has been organized by Soviet Russia against the United States, Great Britain and the Western democracies of Europe.

"That for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security pending the re-establishment of law and order and the inauguration of a system of general security, they will consult with one another and as occasion requires with other members of the United Nations with a view to joint action on behalf of the community of nations.

Copyright, 1948, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"I think it's grand the way your wife let's you smoke in the living room!"

"6—That after the termination of hostilities they will not employ their military forces within the territories of other states except for the purposes envisaged in this declaration and after joint consultation.

"7—That they will confer and co-operate with one another and with other members of the United Nations to bring about a practicable general agreement with respect to the regulation of armaments in the post-war period." — Joint four-nation declaration (United States, Great Britain, Soviet Union, China—Moscow, October 3, 1943).

"But for the prodigious exertions and sacrifices of Russia, Poland was doomed to utter destruction at the hands of the Germans. Not only Poland as a state and as a nation, but the Poles as a race were doomed by Hitler to be destroyed or reduced to a servile station . . . When the Germans had clearly avowed their intention of making the Poles a subject and lower-grade race under the Herren-volk, suddenly by a superb effort of military force and skill, the Russian armies . . . advanced from the Vistula to the Oder . . . Freeing the whole of Poland . . ." — Winston Churchill—House of Commons, Feb. 27, 1945.

The documents of the Stalin-Hitler alliance published by the State Department show that Soviet Russia was an active partner in the German disposal of Poland.

"AND AS TO PEACE—We are sure that our concord will win an enduring peace. We recognize fully the supreme responsibility resting upon us and all the United Nations to make a peace which will command the goodwill of the overwhelming mass of the peoples of the world and banish the source and terror of war for many generations." — Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin, Tehran, December 1, 1943.

"Our meeting here in the Crimea has reaffirmed our common determination to maintain and strengthen in the peace to come that unity of purpose and of action which has made victory possible and certain for the United Nations in this war. We believe that this is a sacred obligation which our governments owe to our peoples and to all the peoples of the world.

"Only with the continuing and growing co-operation and understanding among our three countries and among all the peace-loving nations can the highest aspiration of humanity be realized . . ." — Churchill, Roosevelt, Stalin—Yalta, Feb. 11, 1945. And so it went on and on. The American people need to remember what they were told and how little of it was related to the reality that we see in the month of January of the year 1948. How time does pass—and how short is the memory of man—particularly of politicians.

—Sheriff Charles L. Buskirk said three persons perished and four others were seriously burned in a fire that followed an eight-car collision seven miles from here.

The accident occurred when one car stopped during a heavy dust storm and other cars piled into it, he said. Gas tanks on the cars and a bottled gas tank in a house trailer began exploding after a fire of undetermined origin blazed up in the wreckage.

Jean de Valois was a beautiful and daring enchantress whose noble blood enabled her to operate in the inner circles of the court of King Louis XVI of France and even to swindle Queen Marie Antoinette.

Her story, told by John Erskine, will be the first in a new series, entitled 'Feminists of the Ages' beginning in next Sunday's American Weekly, magazine distributed with the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The text will be featured by a full-color cover posed by Betty Grable and painted by Henry Clive.

HASTEN TAX REDUCTION

"MASSACHUSETTS WILL have the best Community Property Law in the nation. "It will be practical, workable and entirely constitutional. "It will be the kind of statute which will accomplish all its beneficial aims and purposes."

That is the assurance of Senator Edward M. Rowe of Cambridge, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Legal Affairs. In an interview in the Boston Sunday Advertiser, the Senator also said:

"All of us on Beacon Hill are seriously disturbed by the fact that the people of Massachusetts are paying as much as 40 per cent MORE taxes to the government in Washington than the people with identical wages and salaries are paying in California, Michigan and other Community Property States. We know that this inequitable situation is harmful in the extreme.

"Not only is it draining our savings, bank accounts and financial resources needlessly and unnecessarily, to the extent of $100,000,000 a year.

"But it is also making it harder for us to compete with the enterprising States of the West and Northwest which are doing their utmost to lure away many of our most essential business and industrial establishments."

These reasons, so well stated by the Senator, should be sufficient to cause the Legal Affairs Committee, and later the whole Legislature, to hasten action on the Community Property Law.

Every day that is lost through procrastination or deliberate obstruction obliges the people of Massachusetts to pay $300,000 MORE income taxes to the Federal Government.

The people need that money to combat inflation and to maintain their living standards. They are the sufferers when it is taken away from them and spent in other States and countries.

IMPORTANT BILL

ONE OF the most important public hearings of the year will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock in Room 433 at the State House.

At that time the Committee on Municipal Finance will act on the petition of Senator Chester A. Dolan, Jr., of Boston, the Democratic leader, and Senator William C. Geary of Lowell to allow cities to exceed their statutory debt limit for the establishment and development of hydroelectric facilities.

The Legislature has already permitted municipalities to borrow money in this manner for the purchase of airports.

Wherefore, if an airport is desirable, a power plant producing low-cost and abundant electricity to free the people from the hazards of recurrent coal and petroleum famines is at least a hundred times more desirable.

The Dolan-Geary Bill should be of especial interest and concern to legislators, mayors and selectmen from cities and towns with neglected water power sites, for it offers them a golden opportunity to revive lagging industries in their communities.

It is a fact that tax rates in many cities with obsolete dams and ancient canal systems will eventually be reduced as much as 40 per cent if the Dolan-Geary Bill becomes law.

DO YOUR PART

THE THOUSANDS of Greater Boston people who want the present campaign of the Suffolk County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis to be the most successful in the important organization's history should make their contributions immediately.

Donations will be gratefully received at the Infantile Paralysis Headquarters, 209 Massachusetts ave., Boston.

The March of Dimes is an eminently worthy charity. The Suffolk County campaign, with only three days more to go, will surely exceed its quota if everyone resolves now to make his contribution AT ONCE.

—GEORGE ARNOLD.

IN A RECENT issue my distinguished colleague, W. Pegler, compares the executive branch of the Federal government to a football team. In so doing, he makes a reference to the "dumb football guards with strong backs and weak minds." This comparison glorifies the backfield men. This calls for my joining the vast army of persons under whose skin the propriety Mr. Pegler has gotten. I used to be a football guard, myself. If it were not for the guards and tackles, the glamor boys of the backfield would not be able to enjoy the opportunity to pass and kick. A football team with a weak line is like a car with a broken axle. The playing of the guard is a position not only essential to a strong back but a strong guard and a character strong enough to bear it under the most cruel and deprived of the praise and glory deserved. But the junkiest cut of all is that Mr. Pegler compares a football guard to a vice president. I have heard my captains colleagues challenge to meet me at St. Connelly and Donnelly's, The Place, Manhattan, to argue this thing. If Mr. Pegler thinks he is going to outsnap, outsmart and outgeneral me, argumentatively, I may be in for a surprise. Don't forget, I learned to argue on the playing fields of Southern Brooklyn.

THAT CLUB: Until now it has appeared that in the coming campaign to elect a president of the My Name Is a Poem Club to succeed Hugh Blue that Truly Dooley, Providence, R. I., would be an easy winner. However, I have learned from a reliable source, the borough of Manhattan, New York city is grooming a highly dangerous opponent for Miss Dooley in the person of a popular department store employee named Herman Sherman Berman.

AMONG THE MARRIED: The leading argument among married people of this century is concerning money. Such is the stated result of one of these opinion polls. I don't feel we can judge all married people by those who discuss their private affairs with door-to-door questioners. Think it over. I ask you, would you enter an intimate discussion of your domestic difficulties with some stranger, who knocked on your door with pad and pencil in hand? Most married people are inclined to keep their domestic difficulties strictly to themselves. When they do discuss them it is generally with close friends or relatives; not with strangers. I doubt very much the leading cause of matrimonial arguments in this country is money. As I will discuss this matter a little later in the semester.

HUNTERS: Among men accidentally shot by hunters, in California in 1947, was one mistaken for a rabbit. A similar fatality resulted when another man was mistaken for a turkey. Still another fatality came about when a group of hunters decided to chase hunting animals and began playing "Hiders and Indians" in their 40 hunting. So I must speak with authority regarding the conduct of the sport. When men are mistaken for rabbits and bucks and hunters start playing "Hiders and Indians" my suspicion is aroused. Are there more hunters who consume sharp deer while hunting? If so, I think there should be a law making it a criminal offense to carry a gun while hunting.

MOST POPULAR: Who is the most popular Ziegfeld Follies girl? I ask the question, I can't answer it. However, I think Anastasia Bely is a constantly recurring question to her whereabouts. Anastasia, now Mrs. Buhl, is the wife of a wealthy oilman, Datto M. Mich.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

THE BELATED disclosure by our State Department of the details of the cooperation between Stalin and Hitler renews interest in the pro-Russian propaganda book called "Dinner at the White House," by Eleanor Roosevelt's friend and guest, Louis Adamic.

Westbrook Pegler

Adamic is a native Serb and a naturalized American. He struts through his pages as an ardent, but always non-combatant, partisan of Marshal Tito, the Communist Quisling and Muscovite puppet who rules Yugoslavia.

The information which the State Department has released is the property of the American people. Until now it was suppressed to conceal the practical cynicism of Marshal Stalin and the dishonesty of all attempts by Roosevelt and Nazism to distinguish between Communism and Nazism.

It is now released for the political purpose of justifying President Truman's program of buying the friendship of European peoples by the labor of Americans who toil to pay taxes to buy the goods to be used as bribes.

Adamic says he is a Socialist and there is no evidence that he ever joined the American Communist party. That part is unimportant, however. But his own statements, arguments and intimations are important.

And the fact that Eleanor Roosevelt picked such a man to dine with Winston Churchill in January, 1942, and that this man used this occasion to damn British imperialism and advocate American compromise with Russia on ideological points certainly has a bearing on Mrs. Roosevelt's fitness for any job with the American government.

The Stalin-Hitler deal was cold-blooded business. They agreed to divide races and areas. When they disagreed the issue was no matter of "democracy" or "deceit" but a rivalry and distrust between these two empires.

ROOSEVELT ANGRILY acknowledged the brutality of the Soviet dictatorship, but he, nevertheless, walked to the left in all developments. He might, with equal justification, have dealt with Hitler and played them against each other.

The influences about him were anti-Hitler and tolerant of Stalin. The Republican Presidents, from Harding to Hoover, had held Lenin and Stalin at arm's length, but Roosevelt set Stalin up in the world. He was responsible for the growth of Russian prestige and power, even while the American Communists here were carrying on their treachery.

The United States and Britain had backed Gen. Mikhailovitch and Mikhailovitch had fought well against the Nazi and the Fascist until he was stabbed in the back by Tito with a barbarian army of Balkan hill-billies subsidized by Russia.

As Adamic says, Mikhailovitch accepted help from Hitler's weakened forces to stand off the Communist invasion. Any patriotic American leader would have done the same in like conditions. But the United States abandoned him and Tito had him shot by a firing squad.

IT MAY BE DOUBTED that Adamic succeeded as well as he thinks he did in making Churchill, Churchill may have thought of him as a strange object and he certainly must have had a low opinion of the manners of his host and hostess.

Adamic never attempts to differentiate between Hitlerism and Communism, point by point. He tries to propose a compromise without ever saying what concessions a free people could make to that tyranny which found Hitler a congenial partner in the general whackup of Europe and the Near East.

The point to be emphasized is that Eleanor Roosevelt, with the State Department, the FBI and Army and Navy Intelligence hopping at her imperious commands, still invited this fellow to dine with the British prime minister and promote the ultimate delivery of all Europe to Stalin after American soldiers and wealth had wrought the liberation.

ALTHOUGH ADAMIC is a physical giant and owes the United States an enormous debt of gratitude and patriotism, he let the neighbors' children fight the war that he so passionately demanded.

Once he was on the verge of getting a staff job with Fiorello LaGuardia, who was angling for a political commission as a brigadier in some parasitic nuisance corps.

Again he was mentioned when talk was of an American force in Yugoslavia. But he stipulated his own political conditions for acceptance of such duty, and, of course, this made it impossible to use him.

Thus, Louis Adamic, the friend of Eleanor Roosevelt, mentioned about 40 times in the reports of the Dies and Thomas Committees on Un-American Activities, Adamic the advocate of Tito, stayed out of the fighting.

"Honey, you know that rare antique vase? You don't have to worry any more about matchin' it!"

Pupils to Make Up Snow Holidays

SCHOOL BOYS MAY HAVE their first snow holiday this year, as the State Comm. of Education John J. Desmond, Jr., announced today.

Desmond said Saturday morning studies might be required to make up for time lost during the snow days.

He added he would not believe a state of emergency, the only option through which schools can close the state law which requires 180 sessions for schools during the year.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR T. NELSON of Chestnut Hill announce the engagement of their daughter, Gertrude Lill Nelson, to William A. Waldron of Cambridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Newman Waldron of Schenectady, N. Y.

The future bride, better known as Trudy, attended Beaver Country Day and Ethel Walker Schools. She is a graduate of the New Vesset in 1942 and five following years received her Masters Degree from Columbia College, New York, in 1947.

Patricia Burke

Mr. Waldron attended Taft School and graduated in 1935 from Union College where he was member of Phi Beta Kappa and Alpha Delta Phi. He studied under a government fellowship at Harvard and graduated from Harvard Law School in 1941.

During the war he was on the staff of the National War Labor Board and is now practicing law in Boston.

By SYRIL CAR, taxi and slams bare some 80 guests as they way through snow drifts to the engagement tea Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Monahan of Newton Center gave Sunday in honor of their daughter, Jane, and her fiance, Lt. Conrad Daniel Gray Cone.

The house was decorated with spring flowers and candlelight. The future bride received in a ballerina gown of pale pink trimmed with silver and turquoise. She and her fiance were two white orchids in her dark hair. She is a graduate of Regis College.

Lt. Conrad Gray-Cone is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gray-Cone of New York City. He graduated from Fordham University and is stationed in Philadelphia.

Friends of the couple on hand to extend their best wishes included Mr. and Mrs. Peter Regio, Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Ross, Margaret Ellen Burke and her debutante sister Patricia, debutante Mary Lemone Hewitt, Jane Holland, Ruth Lally, Eugene Lyne, Marie Sisk, May Bottomley, Carol Doran, Peter Hines, Mary Smith and Katharine Althoff.

TRAVEL NOTES: A couple of weeks of sunshine and a chance to enjoy their favorite sport, golf, will lure Mr. and Mrs. Louis Curcio of Brookline to South Carolina later this week.

The Eben Drapers of Beacon St. can sing "Let It Snow" to their hearts' content, for they are off on a cruise to Havana and Nassau aboard the steamship Yarmouth. In New York this week for theater parties and a luncheon is Miss Gardner E. F. K. Gordon at a guest at the Plaza Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Frances L. Huggison are guests at the Plaza.

THE Boston Junior Women's College Club will celebrate Valentine's Day with a dance at Alumni Hall on the campus to benefit the college Y.M.C.A. service fund. It will be a colorful style party with heart and flower decorations, a magnificent supper and dance exhibit too.

Miss Nancy Steinhilber of Brookline head the committee which includes Miss Robert H. G. Grant, Jr., Mr. Augustus W. Smith, Jr., Mrs. James Whitcomb, Mrs. Rene J. Matossi, Mrs. David G. Darrow, Jane Paul Parker, Headland, Helen C. P. K. and Constantine Smith.

Jean Arthur to Sing In 'A Foreign Affair'

Jean Arthur, never before known for her vocalizing on the screen, will sing in a night club sequence in Paramount's "A Foreign Affair" in which she stars with Marlene Dietrich and John Lund. In this romantic comedy, Jean plays a prim congresswoman from Iowa who visits Berlin to designate troop morale. There she meets a night club entertainer, and falls in love with him, an Army captain.

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

WE WISH WE COULD print all the wonderful letters that have come to our desk from dieters . . . all of whom assure us that they are well on the way to being cheerful little "eyefuls."

All the communications sound the same single note—they've tried other diets, couldn't complete them, but this one suits them to a T. . . that they've lost many pounds and they feel like the powerful, million-dollar. All express amazement at not being hungry even though they are shedding the pounds.

It's the Fashion

And that's good news! We are still sentimentalists at heart about helping other women to improve themselves . . . and call us childish if you will, but two letters are like music to our ears. We hope we have explained all the problems besetting a dieter. If we haven't . . . just write and we'll give you the answer to your pertinent worry.

Of course there are no two people who think alike or lead the same kind of life. But as far as physical expenditure is concerned . . . most of us fall into three categories . . . those who lead sedentary lives, those who are somewhat moderately active . . . and those who are very active and constantly on the go.

Once you've reached the weight right for your age, height and bone structure . . . there's no further need to diet, only the need to eat sufficiently of a well-balanced regime to unlearn successfully the completion of your daily tasks and the happiness and well-being of you, personally.

WATCH YOUR WEIGHT

If you follow a scientific blueprint of what is proper for you . . . you'll never be overweight and you'll always feel mentally and physically alert . . . and look it. So ask yourself what kind of a life you lead. Do you sit most of the day at a desk . . . drive a car a little . . . visit with friends and sit some more . . . listen to the radio or go to the theater or concert for diversion? Your life is pretty much a sedentary one. You are fairly still most of the time. Your rugged individualism is unquestionably a vigorous expression of mind rather than of body. Not that you don't work hard at your desk . . . but surely under such a setup your body doesn't get the physical dressing down that your mentality does.

Eat you must, but since the kind of work you do determines the amount of food you require, you of this group must count calories carefully. You of this group must watch your weight and what you eat . . . lest you pile up the pounds, quickly and unwittingly.

YOUR BLUEPRINT

Here is your blueprint:
BREAKFAST: Fresh fruit or fruit juice, enriched or whole wheat bread with butter or cream with whole milk; coffee or milk.

LUNCH: A nutritious soup (vegetable, or occasionally a cream soup); fruit or vegetable salad; bread with butter, beverage, milk preferably.

DINNER: Meat, fish, fowl or other protein food such as eggs or cheese; yellow or green vegetables, at least one of each EVERY day and one of them RAW; fruit, vegetable or green salad; bread with butter; and either milk, coffee or tea as a beverage.

Let your conscience be your guide on the sweets and rich desserts question.

In tomorrow's Boston Evening American, we'll outline the protective diet for the "moderately active" girl.

A TITIAN-HAIRED beauty . . . with a voice to match . . . is Rosalind Courtwright (Rosalind Keith of the movies) starred for both currently at the St. Regis Maisonette. Despite all her endearing young charms . . . Rosalind recently told me that she considers a woman's mouth the most focal part of the face and that she concentrates on this feature . . . particularly when she sings all eyes are glued to her mouth. By the same token, a quiet conversational twosome brings glances, and second ones, too, to the kissables.

This Liquid Makes Lipstick Stay Perfect for Hours

DO A LITTLE lip-reading. Look around at your friends and acquaintances . . . not right after they have stepped away from the dressing table . . . but after they've another to make your handiwork stay put!

What we're trying to hint at . . . and not gently . . . is a cosmetic that secures lip coloring to the lips for ever so long . . . makes it last and last with nary a blotch or smear or blemish. Simple little formula . . . it comes with its own brush, used to stroke the liquid over the made-up lines. Momentarily . . . and only for a moment . . . you'll experience a tingling sensation. Even the color will change . . . but just as instantly . . . it will dry and the color will return for the most perfectly turned out lips you've ever seen . . . to remain so for much longer than you imagined. The little bottle may be carried in the purse . . . for any emergency use.—R. M.

For the name of this stay-on lipstick cover-liquid, phone the Beauty Dept., Liberty 2-4000, any day except Sunday, or write to Ruth Mugglebee, care of the Boston American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Birthday Horoscope

The Correct Thing

CAREFUL, PLEASE! Carelessly held cigarettes can do damage in crowded quarters. Gesticulating with a cigaret at a crowded cocktail or tea party, on the dance floor, etc., is not only thoughtless but a fire hazard as well!

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

THE CHIEF puffed into the taste-test kitchen and began to take the packages out of the shopping bag. "Two cans of juice of tangerine, 1 lb. prunes—"

"Are you planning a compote of prunes and tangerine juice for dessert?" I interrupted.

A GOOD OPENER

"Not exactly," the Chef explained. "I think the tangerine juice will be a good opener for tomorrow's dinner. The flavor is wonderful, and it is something different. And the prunes—ah, they are the new tenderized prunes; they cook very quickly."

"Let's use them in a prune pudding, Norwegian style," I suggested. "This will add another excellent dessert to our collection of desserts without eggs. But what did you get for the main dish?"

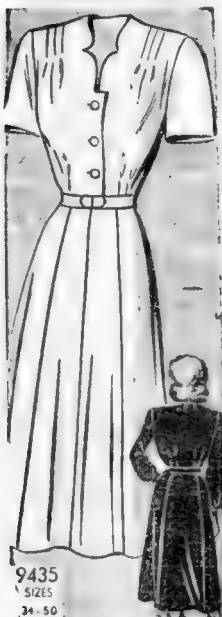

"For that I have the favorite of the grand gourmet and famous statesman and prime minister, Lord Salisbury."

"Oh!" I laughed. "You mean chopped steak otherwise known as Salisbury steak. But it is a good food, and right now one of the more plentiful meats."

GRID IT TWICE

"I bought chuck steak," said the Chef. "I shall put it through the meat-chopper two times, to make very tender. And right here I want to ask you, madame, why is it that when so many people cook this steak it comes out burned or the outside and raw in the middle?"

"That, of course, is because it is cooked at too high heat."

If the chopped steak is formed into thick cakes, obviously it cooks too much on the outside and not enough in the middle, unless the heat is carefully regulated. The remedy is to brush it over with a good liquid gravy seasoning and broil rapidly until well browned or seared all over. Naturally, it must be turned. Then lower the heat, and slow-broil to finish. If the broiling heat is difficult to control, move the broiling pan further away from the heat. The chopped steak should be broiled while broiling with a little fat so it won't be dry.

CENTER OF A MEAT GRILL

"Cooked in this manner the steak is worthy to become the center of the meat-grill, handsome enough to set before Lord Salisbury himself," enthused the chef. "For the presentation I shall use the big aluminum serving platter. In the central position of honor there will be the galaxy of steaks annointed with the pan gravy, and each crowned by one piece of crisp bacon. On the side, they will be flanked by the golden fried onions, and on the other side by a grand fluff of mashed white potatoes delicately rouged with paprika, and around the edge there will be a garland of parsley tied with a bow of strips of the red pimento."

"And when will this grand presentation take place?" I inquired.

"Not later than tomorrow at dinner," promised the Chef.

TOMORROW'S DINNER

Tangerine Juice, Cheese Toasts, Salisbury Steak, Bacon Fried Onions, Mashed Potatoes, Pan Gravy, Quick Cabbage, Prune Pudding, Norwegian Style Cinnamon Whipped Cream, Coffee or Tea, Milk (Children)

All measurements are level

Recipes serve four

CHEESE TOASTS

Toast small slices any kind of bread on one side. Spread untoasted side with a little margarine with which grated cheese has been mixed. Place under the broiler until beginning to brown.

These rinds can often be grated away down to the outside to yield enough cheese.

SALISBURY STEAK

Put 1 lb. good grade chuck beef through chopper twice with ½ tsp. salt and ½ tsp. pepper. Form into cakes 1-in. thick, containing 2 generous tbsp. brush with liquid gravy seasoning. Place in a pre-heated broiler 2 in. from heat and broil about 8 min., turn once. Baste with a little melted butter or margarine. If a tbsp. of water is put into the broiling pan, the drippings from the meat will not burn and can be used for pan gravy. Serve each chopped beef cake topped with plenty of steam-fried onions and 1 slice of broiled bacon. Pour around the pan gravy.

STEAM-FRIED ONIONS

Peel and slice enough onions (any kind) to make 3 c. Melt 1 tsp. butter or margarine in a heavy frying pan, add 2 tbsp. water. Add 1 tsp. salt and ½ tsp. pepper. Stir in the onions. Cover and slow-fry, turning once during the frying process. Allow about 20 min. When water evaporates, they will be light brown. As the onions cook largely by steam, less fat is needed than when water is used.

PRUNE PUDDING, NORWEGIAN STYLE

Add ½ lb. moist prunes to 2½ c. boiling water. Cover and let stand about 20 min. Bring to boiling point and simmer until tender. Ordinary prunes need 60 min.; tenderized prunes, 30 min. Drain off liquid. There should be 3 c. left. Remove pits from prunes. Crack half of pits, cut up inner meat, and add to prune liquid together with pitted prunes. Next, combine ¾ c. sugar with ½ tsp. salt, ½ t. cinnamon and 1-3 c. cornstarch. Mix thoroughly; add ½ c. cold water and 1 tsp. lemon juice. Stir into prunes. Cook and stir until boiling point is reached; then continue to cook in a double boiler for 20 min. Turn into custard cups first rinsed with cold water. Chill and firm and unmold. Serve with cream, or with whipped cream or evaporated milk, sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

TRICK OF THE CHEF

To make bacon go farther, cover on both sides with fine-cut corn flakes. Fry slowly for extra time 15-20 min.

DANCE, ballerina, dance ... and the rest of this catching melody would be sung with feeling and meaning to a winsome miss wearing this black and white striped taffeta ballerina dress with ruffled petticoat of royal taffeta ... a high fashioner after from Samuel Koss' spring collection. There's the double round collar and armholes edged with scalloped loops of the fabric to rate high on a dance floor or across the table. Koss achieves not the usual fullness circular fashion ... but places it center front and back ... in the skirt with a lift. There has always been rhythm in this designer's clothes ... maybe because Koss likes music—RUTH MUGGLEBEE.

Taking It Too Seriously

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am a boy of 18, a college student, and love a girl of 17 very much. I feel sure she loves me in return, although she has not told me so in words.

The problem is that she was, for a while, going out with my friend. But after he left her, without reason, she told me that he was out of her life for good. She has no hard feelings against him, but is always smiling and gay when he is around.

I would like to know how I can go about asking her to be my girl.

"BROODY BILL."

DEAR "BILL": I can't see that you have any real problem here or why you feel your relationship to this girl is complicated by the fact that she used to go out with your friend. What difference would it make if people thought you had waited until the other boy broke off with her before trying to get her to go with you? It would simply show that you were enough of a good sport to give this other boy a chance, since he was the one she first seemed to favor.

Don't make a mountain out of a mole hill. If you want this girl to go out with you, why not just up and ask her? But if I were you, I wouldn't try to make it too serious a thing at your age.

Luxury for Dinner After Day of Skiing

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

A GIRL'S skiing techniques may be awkward. On the slopes she may rank as a clumsy amateur. But when the skiing day is over and everyone gathers for dinner at the lodge she can shine brighter than the best skier simply by looking beautiful in a luxurious afternoon ensemble.

Her costume should be long, but informal which seems like a paradox until you see an interpretation like the one sketched today. Lange designed this ensemble. Although it looks like a gown, it is actually a three-piece slack suit. It has an extremely abbreviated bra top, a lumber jacket bodice and a pair of loose-cut slacks.

The jacket and the slacks are made of sheer black wool. The bra top is of cyclamen jersey. The jacket has long, loose sleeves, an open front and rather wide shoulders. Both bra and jacket are embroidered in gold and pink beads.

28 The Human Story Behind Dickie Phillips' Genius

By AUSTEN LAKE

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, TUESDAY, JAN. 27, 1948

I HAVE A PERSONAL INTEREST in Dickie Phillips, the high jump genius whose 6'7 topped the K-C field of champions and broke the meet record. For the kid grew up from a spindly-legged sprout across the street in Merry-mount, and on with the neighborhood pack and gave Pop, who is Jack Phillips, Sr., of the American Ad. Dept. his share of the hair and wrinkles.

The kid had a precocious head for tall heights even at the age of 6, and I recall with heart-flips that hot summer afternoon when Jack and I arrived at Merry-mount's beach for a belated swim, both of us a little gaunt, bleached and pained by our swim scumties. And how from some mysterious region a piping, but chirp had shrilled, "Hey, Dad!" and after some myopic searching Jack had spied his 6-year-old heir at the tip-top of a giant oak tree, where the kid was hanging like a miniature Tarzan by the slender strength of his fingertips.

What Daddy Had for Dickie

IT WAS A CLEAN 40-FOOT drop to the sun-baked ground and Jack, Sr., had grabbed himself in the region of his stomach ulcers and swallowed the fuzz in his throat, which he confessed later felt like a sheepskin hat. Finally Pop summoned a mock warble, "That's fine, Dickie. Now climb down very carefully and see what Daddy has for you." The kid slid and skittered down, a branch at a time, with Dad making a basket of his arms and uttering hopeful soul moans, until he bounced to earth. "Watcha got f'r me, Dad?" demanded Dickie with bright-eyed anticipation.

"This," roared relieved Pater, fetching the kid some heavy, repetitious clips on the stern which evoked pained squeals. "And," declaimed Papa, "if you ever go higher than six feet off the ground again I'll serve you for Sunday pot roast."

History shows that last Saturday the kid did go six feet off the ground with seven inches to spare, and once again Pop was watching with his hand-clutched in the region of his stomach ulcers. Only this time, instead of an admonitory clip on the brisket, he gave Dickie a proud papa pat.

Somehow, in spite of parental agony and the laws of gravity, the kid managed to grow up with his usual complement of busted bones and Mother Ruth's prayers and maternal yips, sprouting perpendicularly and mostly legs, until the family moved to Hingham. Dick was 13 then and a bundle of muscle jerks and adolescent convulsions. And that was where his skill as a human frog began.

Among his neighbors was a genial gent with an amazing fondness for his fellow man. His name was Hugh Bain, a granite quarry manager, chief judge at Wonderland's dog track, a track enthusiast who once ran the hurdles for Brown, and a very handy man with a tool kit. I used to see a lot of Hugh in those days, sitting under his apple trees on his broad green lawns with a little something in a frosted glass and sniffing the heady fragrance of his pet rose bushes. There was always pleasant conversation something in the black pot or the brown jug, and lot of folksy people. For I don't know any man who had a deeper capacity for friendship than Hugh or who found time to do so many helpful things for his neighbors.

The Kindling Spark

THE PHILLIPS USED TO DROP by the pond usually with Dickie, who by this time was a gangling colt with flamingo limbs and a contagious, lop-sided grin. He was a little nearsighted and what with his spindly build, dirt on his shirt, 20 in for the cow-pasture ball games or duck pond shinnys at his boyhood fellowships. So Hugh, with his brotherly way with old and young, was coming up some fun and show. One day he came over a make-shift bar with a clothes prop, and in the vainglorious way of all old athletes, make some arthritic leaps to illustrate the hitch-and-kick and the body-roll which he considered good form. So the kid would emulate Hugh in a gawky way and kept dropping round at odd moments. Hugh said, "Well, you need a jumping standard and I'll build you one." When he did, like the perfectionist he was with his saws, augers and hammer.

So Dickie saw the spark. He was leaping out of the grassy dirt in his heavy jumpsuits. Hugh stood by, and he had a certain something begins his muncing foot steps behind him, and the five feet there scioning over the bar. And when he was ready Hugh said, "Dickie, I can help you any more. The rest is up to you. But you're championship stuff if you stick with it."

Then about that time Dickie on that,

Track Mob Tried to Kill Jockey Who Refused 'to Pull' Horse

(This is the third of a series of inside stories about the battle against race track crookedness and skulduggery during the six years while George P. Mahoney was on the Maryland Racing Commission.)

By ALEXANDER GIFFORD

This is the story of a young jockey who twice for his life. Once he saved it. The second time he lost it. It is the story of the tragic death of jockey Joseph W. Pannell, and of how he happened to get killed Dec. 9, 1943, and of hitherto unpublished events leading up to that tragedy.

Like our recent story of Jockey Martinez, it involved the fixing of a race.

But this one was to be a "pull-out" instead of a "shoo-out."

In the "pull-out" the technique is to run the logical winner so that he quite illogically gets a win.

WITNESSED BY MAHONEY

In a remarkable parallel with the Martinez race, it was witnessed by Commissioner George P. Mahoney of Maryland.

By the time Mahoney was convinced that air was not as it should be with the half-mile tracks.

In the first place, in the old days these tracks used to do pretty well if they had a $50,000 daily handle.

Now the betting, in contrast, was running half a million per day.

The answer was in the "come-back money." To the uninitiated, this is money bet by bookmakers and racketeers to the track to cover or "hedge" on their holdings of other people's bets.

It also includes large bets placed at these half-mile tracks by shady individuals who have fixed or think they know of fixed races.

This condition seemed to high heaven of crookedness, and so Mahoney dug into his own pockets.

HIRED DETECTIVES

He hired and paid for three detectives. They knew the tracks and race-track people.

They could look like him, talk like him, melt into the back ground as the wild animal melts into his forest environment.

From these men to Mahoney's office began to pour a stream of information about a band of a dozen or more racketeers, mostly from Washington, D. C., who were operating at the half-mile tracks.

"They'd been doing big 'business' at Wheeling and Charles Town."

Mr. Mahoney was informed that they were moving on to Maryland.

The private detectives kept dogging the heels of the jockeys, trying for actual evidence of a "fix."

RIDER OF PROMISE

Among the jockeys they were following was the "apprentice of the year," Jockey Pannell, nine years old, a rider of great promise. Once he told Mahoney: "I want some day to ride the winner of the Kentucky Derby."

It's not easy to "fix" a boy who's shooting high. But another jockey of a different stripe tried it. That jockey was Matt Quinn.

One day Mahoney's detectives were at breakfast at a Marlboro hotel. At a nearby table was jockey Pannell and his beautiful lunge, Anna May Pannell, eighteen years old.

Anna May was a picture-book girl and as sweet as she was pretty.

She had watched her husband ride his winners with shining eyes and his ideals were her ideals.

Already she could see herself

JOCKEY MATT QUINN

Set Down for Attempted Fix

in the stands at Louisville, cheering her boy as he rode a Derby winner.

Quinn sidled over to the table where the Pannells were eating.

SHAKE HEADS IN ANGER

He whispered. The detectives saw Joe and Anna May shake their heads angrily.

The young jockey clamped his mouth tight until his chin muscles stood out.

It was obvious that Quinn was trying to get Pannell to do something shady and that Pannell was refusing.

They heard only two words "first race." That meant they had to hurry.

Now, this was "getaway day." That is racetrackese for the last day of a meeting.

Race track crooks love to do their dirt on this day.

They seem to feel the suckers will squawk less if they are "triken" on the last day. It will be forgotten sooner when the track doesn't open the next day.

CONTACTED MAHONEY

Also, if an investigation starts, it's more convenient to be many, many miles away, pocketing their ill-gotten gains at another track. The detectives got hold of Mahoney, who had just arrived at Marlboro to see what he could see.

They told him: "We know some kind of a 'fix' is on for the first race."

"Quinn was probably trying to get Pannell to pull White Sea." They figured that Pannell loved to win races, and since his mount was White Sea in the first race, and since he had angrily shaken his head, Quinn must have asked him to pull in his horse.

TALKED WITH PANNELL

Leonard Carver, owner and trainer of White Sea, was in the paddock awaiting the saddling of White Sea.

Carver had a quick chat with

Pannell and the boy admitted that Quinn had offered him $150 to pull his mount.

He told Carver that he believed he could win with the horse, but he was afraid the other jocks would gang up on him and not let him pass them.

Carver told Pannell he would fix that. He said:

"White Sea is a slow beginner, and I told you to make your move late in the race."

"Well, we'll just change all that. You go out in front right at the start and maybe White Sea will have enough left to make it."

Pannell said he'd try, but warned that he was in a spot. He told Carver it was a "lough mob" and they were out to "get him."

JOCKEY FRIGHTENED

The boy was obviously frightened, not only of Quinn, but of the dozen sinister figures Quinn represented.

But he climbed into the saddle and rode quietly out on the track to try his best to win the race.

Mahoney stood at the rail and watched it. Mahoney said:

"One of my men came over and whispered that the race was fixed for Scollin to win."

"Well, as for me, I was willing to bet on Pannell because I knew the boy was honest."

The barriers opened and the horses leaped out of the starting gate stall, but none so fast as White Sea.

Riding with whip and heels, Pannell shot his mount into an early lead.

They swung around the turn where Mahoney was watching, and White Sea still led the pack.

And that's the way it was, at the finish. White Sea just lasted long enough to win.

WENT TO PANNELL

The tall, lean commissioner strode into the jockey's room. He went straight to Pannell and took him into a side room. The other

MONTREAL, Jan. 27 (AP)—Buddy O'Connor, clever playmaker of the New York Rangers, continues to set the pace in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race with 41 points, two more than runner-up Max Bentley of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Syl Apps, and Chicago's Bud Poole are tied for third place at 36 points apiece.

Harry Lumley of Detroit has moved to the front in the battle for goal-tending honors. Lumley has the best goals-against average, 2.35, and has turned in the most shutouts, five.

Bouncing Bill Bartko of Toronto has spent the most minutes in the penalty box, 117.

McCarthy to Face Quiz Kids of Press, Radio Tomorrow

By JACK CONWAY

JOE MCCARTHY will hold a conference with Joe Cronin at the Myles Standish Hotel shortly after his arrival in Boston tomorrow morning from Buffalo. At noon, McCarthy will greet more than 150 sports writers and radio-casters at a luncheon in Jimmy O'Keefe's new restaurant on Boylston st.

McCarthy will get from Cronin last minute information as to the 1948 plans of the Red Sox. The two-Joes have kept in touch with each other by telephone and letter since the baseball meeting in New York. Since then, several matters of vital importance to the Sox have come up, and they will be discussed at tomorrow morning's meeting.

McCarthy will not make any statements to the press until he meets all of the sports writers and radio-casters at the luncheon.

"Joe McCarthy will answer all questions that the sports writers and radio men wish to fire at him," said Secretary Tom Dowd of the Red Sox. "If there are still questions to be asked at the end of the gathering at Jimmy O'Keefe's, we shall go to Fenway Park where McCarthy will hold forth as long as it is necessary to do so."

McCarthy will be greeted by a record number of sports writers and radio-casters. Reservations have come in for the luncheon from all parts of New England.

"It proves the tremendous interest in the first Boston visit of Joe McCarthy as manager of the Red Sox," said Dowd.

Cronin will be able to inform McCarthy that he has had no contract trouble with any of the players. Most of them have already signed contracts, while those who have not done so only have small differences with the club, and it is expected these will be ironed out soon.

McCarthy will remain over for the baseball writers' dinner which will be held at the Copley Plaza Thursday night. Chairman Joe Cashman of the Boston Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Ass'n says the dinner is a complete sellout.

Jimmy Mead Won 22 Out of 26 Bouts

JIMMY MEAD, New York middleweight who will oppose Al (Red) Priest of Cambridge in a 10-round bout at a Goodwin A. C. show at the Garden next Monday night, is a wide open, two-fisted fighter. Since going under the management of Tex Sullivan of New York, he has won 22 out of 26 bouts. He later defeated three of the men who had scored decisions over him.

Phil Buccola recently saw Mead punch his way to a win over Herbie Kronowitz.

"Mead did not take a single backward step during the bout," said Buccola, "while he kept tossing leather with both hands. He won the decision and made a big hit with the fans. He is the type of boxer who will be well received in Boston win, lose or draw."

Mead is Irish-American, and he will cause the fans to think back to the days when Mike O'Dowd ruled the middleweight division. O'Dowd boxed here frequently, and finally lost his title to Johnny Wilson, who was under the management of Marty Killilea, in a show promoted by Roy Green's Fenway A. A. at Mechanics Building. Hector McInnis was referee, and there were no judges. It was McInnis' decision that gave Wilson the championship.

When Wilson's victory was disputed in New York, Killilea signed Johnny to meet O'Dowd in a return bout on St. Patrick's Day night in the old Garden. Wilson won again, and retained his title for several years until he was outscored by Harry Greb in a 15-round bout at the Polo Grounds.

Mead kayoed Sonny Horne, Tony Riccio, Fritz Zivic, Vinn Rosano, Clem Fitzpatrick and Reuben Shanks, while taking decisions from Joey DeJohn, Herb Kronowitz and other top flight performers.

FLOYD BELL is doing the publicity for Sheldon Fairbanks' Sportsmen's Show which will open at Mechanics Building Saturday afternoon. . . Bell has arranged for a luncheon for the press and radio which will be held at the Statler Hotel Saturday noon. . . Sheldon will attend the luncheon. He is confident the show will be as successful as it was in Detroit.

Last Chance for Local Hoop Fans to See Fulks

The Basketball Ass'n of America's eastern division, as unpredictable as a woman's mind, is likely to have another change when the Philadelphia Warriors make their last local appearance of the season with the Boston Celtics at the Garden tonight.

Hearing on AHA Controversy Put Off Until Tomorrow

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Jan. 27 (AP)—The executive committee of the International Olympic committee, ready to consider the ice hockey controversy which threatens to upset the winter Olympic games opening Friday, today postponed its session until tomorrow because of the absence of two members.

Lord Aberdare of Great Britain and Col. P. W. Scharroo of Holland failed to arrive at St. Moritz by the time the committee met this morning.

Interruption of plane flights was given as the reason for the two members being absent.

"For such an important meeting we did not feel we should go on," a spokesman said.

Meanwhile the executive committee continued its meeting in the City Hall here, considering routine administrative matters.

The group is acting as a court of appeals, of which there is only one higher authority—the full session of the I. O. C. on Thursday.

Avery Brundage, president of the U. S. Olympic Committee, said he would argue that the team from the Amateur Hockey Association of America did not represent the United States.

'NO, NO! NO, NO!'

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Jan. 27 (AP)—Avery Brundage, a scion of central figure in one of bitterest of all Olympic games disputes, gave a hearty laugh today when told there was a report in New York he had resigned.

"No," he said. "No and no." Brundage was in a confident mood.

Local fans will get their last look at Joe Fulks, the game's greatest scoring star. In five games with the Hub five, the "Hillbilly" from Kuttawa, Ky., has amassed the amazing total of 119 points, an average of close to 24 points per game.

He is presently far ahead of his field for the individual title which he won last year with ease.

With Fulks coming to town, it means another scoring duel with big Ed Sadowski of the Celts. In three previous Hub clashes between these aces, Fulks has come up on top. In their last meeting here, Dec. 30, at the Arena, the Warrior set a new pro high locally with 31 points. Sadowski came up with 28 that night.

Two new players Hank Beenders and Bob O'Brien, will make their debut in Philadelphia tonight.

Until two weeks ago, Beenders played with Providence. During his first four games with the Quaker City five, the Warriors got hot and won four in a row until last Thursday when the Celts snapped their string.

The Celts will be out to break their two-game losing streak. For the first time in many weeks, they will be at full strength.

Dutch Garfinkel, sidelined two weeks ago with a knee injury, is now eligible. He was put on the inactive list for five games to make room for Stan Naszka.

If he is ready to play, Coach Honey Russell may sit out either Jack Hewson or Gene Stump. In all probability, it will be Hewson, who has been unable to work out regularly because of his dental studies at Temple.

In the schoolboy preliminary attraction at 7:30, Mission High of Roxbury, last year's Catholic Tournament champions, will be seeking another win over Cathedral of Boston.

Cesario, Fusari, Weber Star Before 13,283 Garden Fans

By JACK CONWAY, JR.

Johnny Cesario sat in the corner of his dressing room at the Garden last night and failed to look the part of a fellow who had just trounced a challenger (Bobby Zollo) and had not the game Mell would have tried to get to his feet and might have been seriously injured.

Lem Moore continued to give Johnny a brisk scalp massage to soothe him after the hard 12 rounds. Johnny Clinton held an ice bag on a sore spot under Johnnie's eye.

"They tell me that I won the fight easy after the eighth round," said the North End champ. "I thought I gave a bum show. I had Bobby well tagged in the fourth. I hit him as hard as I could, but he got up for more. I felt I should have stopped him then, if I was to keep my prestige."

"Bobby is plenty tough all right, but I am just sure at myself for not scoring more heavily. I felt plenty good for this match. Bobby and I had a corker in Providence a few months ago. I thought I had his number to-night. But when a guy gets into a ring he does a lot of things that aren't in the notebook."

The discussed Cesario-Larkin match is out the window. Tippy Larkin failed to look good while beating Joe DeMartino. Joe, who had Marty Servo in one round, did not get close to Tippy all night. The fans were displeased.

Charlie Fusari was the hit of the night. Charlie is a blond Italian. All blonds are supposed to have a punch. Charlie is no exception. Gus Mell will testify to that, for he was dropped with a bang in the fourth. Morris Forman tossed in the towel. If he had not the game Mell would have tried to get to his feet and might have been seriously injured.

"Mell was in pretty bad shape," said Dr. Nick King. "He is suffering from concussion. He left the Garden under his own power, but the fight took a lot out of him."

Jackie Weber, the 23-year-old lightweight from Pawtucket, continues to improve. His win over Spider Armstrong in 10 rounds was one of the best in Jackie's book. His ring record now reads "33 fights, 31 wins."

Jackie will be a daddy in about six weeks, so he hurried out of the Garden for home with his pal, Dr. O'Brien, and his brother Bobbie.

"I don't have enough cash so that I don't have to fight every night," he said with a little smile. "I think I'll go home to Toronto and take things easy until about May or June."

Sad Sam Silverman, the promoter, stopped by after the bouts to say: "I don't feel so sad to-night. The gross was $39,716. The net was $31,283."

Little Considers Offer From Yale

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (INS)—Lou Little, Columbia's famous football coach, admitted today he had had several talks with Yale authorities who repeatedly have sought him as coach to succeed Howie Odell.

Little said the conversations were held with the knowledge and approval of Columbia authorities but he denied that any action had been taken. He added:

"If I were interested only in money I would have accepted Luckey's offer to coach the Brooklyn Dodgers professional team. Rickie offered me more than twice what Columbia pays me and he would have given me a five year contract."

"At the moment I can't say whether I will remain at Columbia or switch to Yale."

College Sixes At Arena Tonight

College hockey will have the spotlight again tonight as another doubleheader takes place at the Boston Arena. Action starts at 7 p. m. as Northeastern faces off against Boston College.

The Huskies, after dropping last night's game, will be gunning for revenge and an opportunity of halting the Eagles' rise in the Eastern intercollegiate ratings.

Boston University will take on New Hampshire in the second half of the twin bill. The Wildcats are fresh from an upset victory over Northeastern. The Terriers return to action after dropping their second game of the year to a strong Dartmouth six.

Track Mob Attempted to Kill Jockey Who Balked at Bribe boys' eyes were bulging out with excitement.

He told Joe that he knew a bribe had been offered him. He told him about the detectives and of the incident at the breakfast table. Finally Joe said:

"I never cheated yet and I'm not going to, ever."

"But do you realize what a chance I'm taking if I testify against these guys?"

Mahoney told him he knew this, but urged that Pannell sign a statement accusing Matt Quinn, and said he'd go to the limit to protect him afterward. Pannell finally agreed.

STENOGRAPHER CALLED

A stenographer was called to the room. When the jockeys saw that, they turned pale. Pannell was going to tell! This was it.

Pannell told of the bribe, an offer by Quinn to bet $150 for Pannell on Scootie if he would pull up White Sea.

When Mahoney asked if Anna May would also sign a statement, the boy's face lighted. He pointed to an auto parked below the window and said:

"There she is, sitting in that car."

"You ask her. I'm sure she'll go along with me. We're really crazy about each other."

When the commissioner spoke to young Mrs. Pannell, the girl said:

"Why, I felt like I could have killed that Quinn for offering my Joe money to run a crooked race."

"Joe and I have great ideas for his future."

"Some day he'll win the Derby

—you wait and see." Unhesitatingly she verified her husband's statement, almost word for word. The racing commission's case against Jockey Quinn was "in the bag."

The horses were moving to Charles Town that night, as were the jockeys, trainers, owners and others of the race track population. The Pannells left in their shiny new car.

About midnight Mahoney had a call at his home. It was Jockey Pannell. He said:

"I told you it would be risky for me to sign that statement. Well, they tried to kill me just now."

"I was driving along a road with a steep embankment."

"A big car passed me and cut in, nearly forcing me over that cliff. We would have been killed!"

NEVER SAY NUMBER

Mahoney asked him if he could identify the car. The jockey told him:

"I was too busy. I had all I could do to stay on the road."

"I never saw their license number."

(In the next article in tomorrow's Boston American the tragic death of Pannell and the outcome of the Quinn case will be told, including the undercover work that enabled Mahoney to prove the attempt to fix the White Sea race.)

English Skating Star Drills Hard for Derby

Audrey Planty, the English skating star who is here to perform in the Record-American-Advertiser Silver Skates Derby at the Garden next Sunday, went through a long three-hour workout at the Arena today. Audrey was at the fights last night. She left early, missing the wild Mel-Fusari battle so that she could get to sleep early.

"I have never been so busy as I am now here in Boston," she continued.

"We went to see the Rangers and the Bruins on Sunday night. I knew most of the players as they spent some time touring England. I used to practice figure skating at the same rink that they would play their hockey games."

Audrey had words of praise for Jane Weiss, one of the top N. E. skaters who will also exhibit in the Derby. Jane is the current New England senior women's champion. She also held the title last season. Billy Mullins, veteran Boston Park Dept. official, has again named the Silver Skates Derby announcer.

Billy is the Silver Skates No. 1 fan. He gets his greatest kick of the season out of calling the start and finish of the midget races.

He tells us that John J. Murphy, the new Boston park commissioner, will be at the Derby with his family.

All contestants in the Silver Skates Derby will be notified by mail during the next few days as to where and when to report for the Derby races.

The program will begin at 12 noon on Sunday.

Foley Memorial Slalom Victor Comes From Skiing Hotbed

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

EXETER, N. H., Jan. 27.—Since 16-year-old Jay Myers, of Manchester, Vt., a member of the Phillips Exeter Academy Ski Club, was the winner of the third annual Walter Foley Memorial slalom at Amesbury last Sunday, we decided to investigate this "skihive" of activity which may soon produce champions.

"Skiing is still an informal sport here," stated Myers. "We have a club of some 32 members, and we've only missed two days on the boards since Christmas. We have had downhill and slalom meets with Governor Dummer Academy and other schools."

This lad would rather ski than eat, claiming that he learned the art by following experts down the trails and slopes of Big Bromley. Displaying fine racing form, he dives through the gates like a rabbit on springs, his weight forward as he swerves and schusses.

Jay's victory was quite a surprise to his teammates, for they all thought that Tommy Corcoran, who finished seventh, was a stand-out.

This teen-aged skier first buckled on bindings in his native country of Canada. During the race he left the starter's flag in a swirl of powder, apex between the flags in speedy style, but came to grief at a lower hairpin, where he caught one ski on a pole.

Other promising Exeter skiers are Simes Fynkhauser, Paul Casey, Bill Paine and Francis Huntington. These boys are all practicing diligently to attain proficiency on the hickories.

Another institution in this section that is turning out skiers is the Emerson School for Juniors. Head Master Edward Emerson is an ardent enthusiast himself, and he is very proud of his proteges.

Among his pupils racing in the Foley Memorial were B. Tyler, L. Montgomery, B. Cox, R. Tyler, R. Flood, D. Crider and Arthur Thorrer. The latter, only 11 years old, is the son of Hans Thorrer,

Kramer Holds 12-9 Lead Moving Into Florida

CHICAGO, Jan. 27 (AP)—Jack Kramer, challenger for Bobby Riggs' pro tennis crown won from Don Budge, had fashioned a lead of 12 matches to nine as the touring players today prepared to leave for Florida to resume the series.

They are scheduled for St. Petersburg Thursday, Miami Beach on Sunday and Palm Beach next Tuesday.
